WHO I AM

Debbie Holts

I am from sliding in the dirt,
Splashing in the mud,
Molded like Adam from the heart of the earth.

I am from church bells,
From pianos and organs,
Hand bells and voices lifted in song.

I am from bread baking in the oven,
Hot cocoa with whipped cream,
A roaring fire by which we stay warm.

I am from playing in the yard,
Running through the sprinkler,
The laughter of children in a cool summer breeze.

I am from rain,
The endless northwest drops,
Glistening on the tips of red leaves in the fall.
