

4-20-2017

A battery. A dragon. A reason to move across the country.

Timothy O'Brien
Concordia University - Portland

Follow this and additional works at: <http://commons.cu-portland.edu/promethean>

 Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation

O'Brien, Timothy (2017) "A battery. A dragon. A reason to move across the country," The Promethean: Vol. 25 : Iss. 1 , Article 32.
Available at: <http://commons.cu-portland.edu/promethean/vol25/iss1/32>

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by CU Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Promethean by an authorized administrator of CU Commons. For more information, please contact libraryadmin@cu-portland.edu.

A battery. A dragon. A reason to move across the country.

Timothy O'Brien

I once had a friend who would urinate on electric fences and not understand why he had degenerative hair loss.

It was a tragic sight to behold.

Someone who would constantly forget they were the source of their own problems, their own devices, being for us an experimental freelance epiphany.

If his father had not joined the war and given up halfway through (which consisted of shooting his own leg off), I would like to think he would be a better friend to us all, but you never can judge someone based on their family.

We keep a beach ball on our couch to throw around in case people are feeling dreary. I find solace in the fact we can have an insta-fun-party-time.

It is definitely more fun than electrocution or amputation.